Mission well done

Col. Gregory Biscone, 509th Operations Group commander, welcomes Maj. Mike Jansen home from the 509th Bomb Wing's forward-deployed location Monday. Jansen flew home with Capt. Alex Mezynski in the Spirit of Georgia. The 509th BW deployed more than 200 aircrew members, crew chiefs, specialists, weapon loaders, munitions specialists and structures specialists in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom. Jansen and Mezynski are members of the 393rd Bomb Squadron.

Rep. Ike Skelton praises 509th Bomb Wing members

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Ike Skelton, Missouri's 4th District, recently paid a tribute to 509th Bomb Wing members. The text of Skelton's tribute, which will be printed in the Congressional Record, follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I want to recognize the outstanding men and women of the 509th Bomb Wing at Whiteman Air Force Base who are responsible for the most advanced flying machine in the hands of our armed forces, the B-2 Spirit Bomber.

"Nearly 3,500 members of the 509th Bomb Wing, operating from both their home base in Missouri and from a forward-deployed location, have kept B-2s in the air around the clock, day and night, since the beginning of our campaign to liberate the people of Iraq.

"The 509th Bomb Wing started Night One of Operation Iraqi Freedom by launching six B-2s and hitting 92 separate regime, command-and-control, and other high-value targets in downtown Baghdad. This unprecedented feat in aerial history was successfully completed by crews flying 38-hour round-trip sorties.

"A tremendous effort has gone into training and equipping our great American airmen. They have proven, once again, that the B-2 is the first to fight. In this case, they have been the only bomber thus far that has been put directly in harm's way over Baghdad. The B-2 has demonstrated that it is an invaluable asset to coalition operations.

"We recognize and thank the members of the 509th Bomb Wing for their sacrifices, both at home and overseas. I know that the members of the famed 509th are also proud and greatly appreciative of the outstanding support they continue to receive from their friends and neighbors in Missouri. On this day and every day, our thoughts and prayers are with all our military members and their families."

Skelton serves as the ranking Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee.

Commander's Corner

By Col. Doug Raaberg

509th Bomb Wing Commander

WE KICKED THE DOOR DOWN ...OPERATION IRAQI FREEDOM CONTINUES. This week the entire fleet of deployed B-2s returned home from their forward fighting location. Our OIF work appears to be coming to a close. Yet, just as our mission calls for us to kick the door down and kill targets, we now must take a combat pause and reflect on our tremendous contribution to the liberation of Iraq.

We've finished our third week of B-2 combat sorties...putting bombs on target, on time...half a world away. For the first time in our illustrious history, we accomplished this feat from two locations.

With a consistency and professionalism that makes every commander swell with pride, our combat chronicles will show that we struck at the heart of the enemy from the opening salvo of this fight. From Baghdad to numerous targets throughout Iraq, we killed almost 600 regime, command & control and military targets with incredible accuracy. Frankly, every weapon hit its precise point...all in less than 50 combat sorties, logging almost 1500 flying hours. That is an incredible capability and we are responsible for. It is also a testament to the 509ers who make it happen each day.

We've learned a lot about our tactics, our jets and ourselves. The results are now being played out on television and perhaps every computer around the world. We have been an integral part of the combined coalition blitz of air strikes that has decimated the Iraqi military apparatus...now our coalition ground forces are standing right in the heart of what was once a lethal battlespace —Baghdad!

Gen Hap Arnold once said in 1936 that our biggest problem as airmen is "we make everything seem too damn easy." He was right then, and he's still right today. In approximately three days of B-2 bombing we helped capture Air Superiority...in approximately three weeks we ran out of targets.

Our Spirit Team has demonstrated once again, that what appears to be easy is really a result of good solid planning, training and realistic exercising. In short, we've 'gotten' back to the basics of who we are...airmen! I commend you on a war-time performance that has truly demonstrated that the B-2 is the nation's choice for the Global Strike Task Force. We may be called to action again...be ready!

AEF 8 IS STILL ON THE ROAD...AND OTHERS. TAKE CARE OF OUR FAMILY. Though we have overwhelmed the world with our B-2, let us not forget that we still have almost 700 deployed members of the 509th. If you include the 442nd Fighter Wing, Navy Special Warfare Unit 114 and the Army National Guard "First Attack", Whiteman AFB has the most number of deployed personnel ever in its history...over 1000 members stationed abroad. In fact, one of our members of the 509th Comptroller Squadron is sitting in Iraq today conducting combat finance operations. More may follow.

Remember their families as we all take pride in the special work they accomplish at home. Now is the time to embrace their needs and comfort them with news from the forward locations.

SPIRIT DAY IS DESERVED. Today is a Spirit Day that we were unable to take in March because of our war preparation.

Enjoy this three-day weekend as we re-acquaint ourselves with our families. We've been pushing 24/7 for months to prepare, now it's time to take a break. Please be safe as you take advantage of this time off...more importantly, the weather is warming up and so may be your desire to get out and about—take it slowly!

An ounce of prevention beats a pound of cure. Remember, safety makes combat sense. Next Friday will be a Spirit Day for April...we've accomplished our mission goal.

Protection of patient's privacy beefed up

By Lt. Col. Mark Lewandowski

509th Medical Support Squadron Commander

When you receive healthcare at the 509th Medical Group clinic, your visit automatically guarantees you certain rights as a patient. Access to quality medical and dental care; respectful treatment; privacy and confidentiality; and knowing the identity and credentials of your medical provider are just a few.

The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 boosted the rights to privacy and confidentiality. HIPAA was passed by Congress to reform the health insurance market. It standardizes the health care administrative processes, Kim Tackett, 509th MedGp privacy officer, said Title II of HIPAA mandates the improvement of the health care system. It standardizes the electronic exchange of health information, and protects the security and privacy of individually identifiable health information.

Each time people see a doctor, visit a pharmacy or send a claim, a record is made of their confidential health information. In the past, health care providers protected the confidentiality of those records by sealing them away in file cabinets and refusing to reveal them to anyone else.

Congress recognized the need for national patient record privacy standards when it enacted the HIPAA. The law included provisions designed to save money for health care businesses by encouraging electronic transactions, but it also required new safeguards to protect that information. Lengthy new federal rules that guard the privacy of personal health information take effect Monday.

For most people checking into hospitals, the first change they'll notice is more paperwork. These questions may also be asked: Do you want us to let people know you're here? Can we tell them how you're doing?

These rules require the hospital staff to ask the patients — or their families — whether they want to be listed on hospital directories. The lists allow visitors to find out a patient's location in the hospital and general medical condition, such as "critical" or "good." If a person doesn't want to be on the directory, then no one can get that information and the hospital staff wouldn't be allowed to confirm whether a person is a patient.

The Military Health System — which the 509th MedGp is a part of — mailed notice of privacy practices to Tricare sponsors in December 2002.

ty standards in place to limit unauthorized access or disclosure of personal health information. The new privacy rule provides Tricare beneficiaries with additional safeguards to ensure their health information is protected and is used by the MHS and Tricare to provide quality patient care.

If you do not receive a copy of the MHS notice of privacy practices in the mail, you may view it online at <http://www.tricare.osd.mil/hipaa/lang-booklets.htm>. The notice explains how the MHS may use and share your personal health information to carry out treatment, payment of services and health care operations. Other reasons permitted or required by law are also referred to in the notice.

During a future visit to the clinic, you'll be asked to sign a medical record jacket label acknowledging receipt of the notice. This is so the MHS can make certain Tricare beneficiaries are informed of their right to the privacy of their personal health information. A patient's acknowledgment of receipt of the notice does not affect eligibility to receive care. For more details, call Kim Tackett at 687-2010.

509er earns ACC award for logistics plans work

By Master Sgt. Dee Ann Poole
Public Affairs

Richard Youngcourt recently earned the Air Combat Command Logistics Plans Award for 2002. Youngcourt is the deputy readiness flight commander for the 509th Logistics Readiness Squadron.

He manages deployment planning and execution activities for Team Whiteman.

Maj. Rex Adece, 509th LRS commander, said Youngcourt is an exceptional logistics planner. "His mission dedication and constant drive to develop job knowledge and gain operational experience established him as a valuable asset in the Whiteman logistics community," Adece said.

Youngcourt is credited with resuscitating the rarely used Whiteman installation deployment system by ensuring current and operation system components, conducting hands-on training and enforcing compliance. His efforts ensured real-world demands were met.

These included safely deploying 350 Missouri Army National Guard members for the 2002 Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah, and deploying more than 425 Reserve members and 70 tons of A-10 support equipment for the 442nd Fighter Wing.

The Tonto Basin, Ariz., native was influential in formatting, editing and publishing the 509th Bomb Wing's installation deployment plan. His work revitalized the installation's concept of deployment processing by ensuring home station units and transiting forces receive high quality, rapid personnel and equipment deployment support.

He employed a newly developed deployment processing line for multiple and unique deployment taskings. His actions eliminated the need for separate initial and final out-processing briefings for deploying members. The effort also saved the wing's personnel readiness unit more than 40 hours in redundant briefings.

"He's the linchpin of the logistics readiness flight," Adece said. "He masterfully handled a myriad of details throughout the full spectrum of Air Force logistics. His fingerprints are all over our logistics planning success."

Youngcourt, however, said he credits winning this award to a number of people.

"I owe this award to the support, resourcefulness and dedication of every member of my flight, squadron and every individual in the 509th and 442nd that works in the deployment machine. Without their contributions and might efforts, winning this award would not have been possible," Youngcourt said.

agle Eyes: Security doesn't stop at gate; be aware of what's going on

By Special Agent Jeff Thompson

Detachment 207, Air Force Office of Special Investigation

We have been fighting the war on terrorism for more than 18 months. With time, comes a tendency to be complacent and that's the last thing we need.

The Air Force developed the "Eagle Eyes" program to combat terrorism by enlisting everyone's assistance.

Almost always, terrorist acts are the culmination of many days, weeks or even months and years of pre-planning. Frequently, the time to prevent the crime is available if we would only recognize the signs.

Specific threats: Threats received by any means that contains a specific time, location or area for an attack.

Surveillance: Someone recording or monitoring activities, including the use of cameras, note taking, drawing diagrams, writing on maps, or using binoculars or any other vision-enhancing device.

Elicitation: Anyone or any organization attempting to gain information by mail, fax, telephone, or in person about military operations or people.

Tests of security: Attempts to measure reaction times to security breaches or to penetrate physical security barriers or procedures.

Acquiring supplies: Purchasing or stealing explosives, weapons, ammunition, uniforms, decals, flight manuals, identification cards, drivers licenses, passes or badges (or the equipment to manufacture them), or any other controlled items.

Suspicious people: People who don't seem to belong in the workplace, neighborhood, business establishment or anywhere else.

Dry run: Putting people into position and moving them about without actually committing a terrorist act such as kidnapping or bombing. An element of this activity could also include mapping out routes and determining the timing of traffic lights.

Deploying assets: People and supplies getting into position to commit the act. This is the last opportunity to alert authorities before the terrorism occurs.

Report suspicious activities to the local law enforcement agency and Detachment 207, Air Force Office of Special Investigations. To report activities to the Det. 207, AFOSI, call 687-1852 between 7:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. weekdays. After these hours, call the 509th Security Forces Squadron Law Enforcement Desk at 687-3700.

By helping to protect Whiteman Air Force Base, you help protect yourself, your family and your community.

Eagle Eyes brochures are available from the AFOSI office at 1031 Vandenberg Ave., Suite 305.

Female B-2 pilot makes history

By Airman 1st Class Alice Moore
40th Air Expeditionary Wing Public Affairs

OPERATION IRAQI FREEDOM (AFPN) — Military women continue to knock down barriers and make history.

Capt. Jennifer Wilson, who deployed with the 393rd Expeditionary Bomb Squadron, landed on the runway April 1 at her forward-deployed location, making her the first female B-2 pilot to fly a combat mission.

"Flying is great," Wilson said. "I can't imagine doing anything else right now, and to be able to have a chance to fly in combat with the B-2 was an awesome experience."

Formerly a B-1 Lancer pilot, her first combat experience was gained during Operation Allied Force in Kosovo, the first time B-1s were involved in combat.

The 30-year-old Miami native earned her ROTC commission at Georgia Technical Institute in June 1995. She attended undergraduate pilot training at Columbus Air Force Base, Miss.

After more than three years of flying the B-1, Wilson said she wanted to become a B-2 pilot.

"I wanted to have the opportunity to fly what I think is the most premier aircraft," Wilson said.

After a lengthy application and interview process, she was accepted for the B-2 pilot training program in the fall of 2000.

She became qualified in April 2002.

"My parents have always been there to encourage me in whatever it was that I wanted to do," Wilson said. "I owe a lot to my family for their support."

"For me, it's exciting to be a part of a chosen few," Wilson said. "I'm lucky to be able to do something so few people will ever have the opportunity to do."

Wilson said she believes the B-2 training she received gave her the confidence to complete the recent combat sortie.

"I wasn't scared," Wilson said. "We've all trained quite a bit leading up to this operation. I knew I was going to be able to come through and get the job done."

Wilson said she doesn't consider the mission a milestone. She said she feels thankful that she deployed with her squadron and the other airmen of the 40th Air Expeditionary Wing who are all working together toward the goal of securing freedom.

"It was just great coming off the plane and seeing the people who came to show me support," Wilson said. "From the maintainers to the operators, I was humbled to see them excited for me. We all work together to make the mission happen."

Annual AFAF campaign helps Air Force people; ends April 18

By Master Sgt. Dee Ann Poole
Public Affairs

Air Force people helping Air Force people is what the Air Force Assistance Fund drive is about. The drive ends April 18.

Whiteman's goal is $46,393. As of April 4, the base achieved 25.6 percent of that goal with contributions of $11,876.

The annual campaign raises money for four charitable organizations benefiting active-duty, Reserve, Guard and retired Air Force people and their families, including surviving spouses and their families. Charities receive 100 percent of the AFAF funds. This is the 30th year of the fund drive.

Letters of support

(Editor's Note: The 509th Bomb Wing has received numerous letters of support for our role in Operation Iraqi Freedom. Here is a small sampling of those letters of gratitude.)

"(I'm) watching from afar — a generation gap — but still the 509th is performing with great authority and effect just like the 509th of World War II and the Enola Gay. All the best to all who service and fly the B-2s."

Bud Weatherson

World War II veteran

"God bless you. You are a big part of what keeps our country safe."

Dale and Junior Dorris

Asbury, Mo.

"... thank you for serving our country so bravely and for fighting for the freedom of the Iraqi people. I just wanted to do what I could and sadly, all I can do is say thank you."

David Williams

Independence, Mo.

"I'm a veteran of the Korean War, and I would like to say how much I really appreciate you guys for what you stand for."

Mike Kushwarra

"I just want to say thank you for making this world a safer place for my 3-month-old son, forever grateful."

Whiteman Spirit Award

Airman 1st Class Nick Martin

509th Public Affairs

Airman 1st Class Nick Martin, 509th Bomb Wing, received the Whiteman Spirit Award from Col. Doug Raaberg, 509th BW commander, Monday.

Angie Littrell of Warrensburg, Mo., nominated Martin for the award.

Martin volunteered on short notice to attend a career fair at Ft. Osage Jr. High in Independence, Mo., after the initial presenter seemed likely to deploy. When the day came for the fair, both Martin and Littrell's husband, the original presenter, were able to attend.

Martin and Staff Sgt. Christopher Littrell, 509th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, provided key information about the variety of career opportunities in the Air Force. They also spoke about Air Force standards and job satisfaction. The also shared personal experiences and information about the B-2.

"He (Martin) did a wonderful job of answering all of their questions," said Angie. "I appreciate all his time and effort he put forward on this project, especially during the present operations tempo."

The career fair coordinator said the airmen received the most positive feedback and invited them back again next year.

"In the future we may see a few of these kids become members of the Air Force thanks to these gentlemen," Angie said.

1st Sergeant's View

(Editor's note: The 1st Sergeant's View gives Whiteman first sergeants a chance to remind people of correct uniform wear, customs and courtesies, and proper military decorum. Each week, a different first sergeant will share their view.)

By Master Sgt. Ben Bachman
509th Medical Group First Sergeant

"Fingernail length and nail polish must be neat, conservative. Mustache length must not exceed the lower portion of the upper lip and cannot extend beyond the corner of the mouth. Earrings are not authorized to be worn by men and if worn by women, must be small and conservative. Hair for both men and women must be groomed and neat in appearance at all times. Nose rings, tongue rings/studs or any other form of body piercing and tattoos cannot be visible."

You may think I took these statements from Air Force Instruction 36-2903, Dress and Appearance Standards for Air Force Personnel, but I didn't. They were taken from job applications from five different civilian employment locations.

Each employer — food services, retail, manufacturing, shipping and an insurance company — had a dress and appearance sheet either attached to the job application.

My point is this: I can't count how many times I've heard Air Force members complain about following the standards and how these standards aren't necessary.

The truth is, our standards aren't much different than our civilian counterparts.

If you plan to separate from the Air Force after your current enlistment because you don't want anyone saying you can't grow your hair really long, grow a fu-man-chu, get a nose ring or get a tattoo of a dragon on your forehead, you might want to contact your future employer and see what the dress and appearance standards are. You might be surprised how interested your future employer is about your dress and appearance, and how it represents their company.

Civilian employee of the week

Kim Preuitt was nominated for this award by 1st Lt. J.J. Jones, 509th Operations Group. "Her initiative and hard work ethic are well above the standard since she joined the 509th Operations Group as an office automation clerk," Jones said. "She routinely, without being asked, works many issues within the office when manning is low. Her work is always top-notch and done right the first time. Kim, by far, is a valuable key player within the OG staff."

Army Staff Sgt. Darrel Lewtung, aircraft mechanic, installs an engine in an OH-58 Kiowa. The 1-135th Aviation Battalion has 10 Kiowa helicopters in its inventory. The aircraft will be phased out as the battalion transitions to AH-64A Apache helicopters.

Missouri Army National Guard continues transitioning to AH-64A Apache helicopters

Army Maj. David Dippold and Army Chief Warrant Officer James Nix perform a preflight check on an OH-58 Kiowa before going on a training mission. The pilots use this helicopter to maintain flying proficiency until the battalion completely replaces the Kiowas with AH-64A Apaches. The 1-135th is beginning a three-year training process for validation and to further integrate with the active Army component. This transition will help the battalion be an effective fighting force as well as a strong resource for the governor of Missouri. The Apache has a full range of aircraft survivability equipment and has the ability to withstand hits from rounds up to 23 mm in critical areas. The AH-64A is a quick-reacting, airborne weapon system that can fight close enough to destroy, disrupt or delay enemy forces. The Apache also has better night flying and fighting capabilities.

Army Sgt. Tony Borgstadt, 1-135th Aviation Battalion, refers to the maintenance order as he repairs a vertical tail fin on an OH-58 Kiowa helicopter. The aircraft is used as an observation helicopter.

Army Spc. Amy Pulliam, Army Staff Sgt. Kimberly Wilson and Army Sgt. 1st Class Gary Courtney review paperwork. Pulliam is the 1-135th Aviation Battalion's headquarters company training NCO. Wilson is the battalion's HHC personnel service NCO. Courtney is the HHC readiness NCO. Collectively they oversee the administrative actions, readiness and training of more than 290 traditional Guardsmen assigned here and in St. Peters, Mo.

Aircraft mechanic Army Staff Sgt. Keith Borgmeyer adjusts the pitch change link on an AH-64A Apache rotor. The 1-135th Aviation Battalion has four Apaches in the inventory. The battalion expects to receive four more by May 31 and have 18 in the inventory by August 2004.

By Airman Joe Lacdan

Public Affairs

While boasting a strong attack, the 509th Medical Group intramural soccer team's scoring abilities start in the trenches: its back line.

"We load up our defense and control the midfield well," said 509th MedGp coach Rich Thorpe. His team defeated the 509th Logistics Readiness Squadron 5-4 and the 509th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron 6-4 Monday. "That's why we scored a lot of those goals."

Forwards Paul Valdez, 509th MedGp, and Mike Addis, 442nd Fighter Wing, returned from last year's team to spearhead the team's attack. Valdez scored two goals to help lift 509th MedGp, (2-0) in the win over the 509th LRS. The striker will help make up for the loss of Steve Chappel, 509th MedGp a scoring threat who is deployed.

"Valdez is our money player," Thorpe said. "He's the guy who gets the ball in the net."

Thorpe said the team's abilities to defend and control the ball at midfield will carry the team to success this season. That strategy panned out to perfection last season, when the team won the intramural league championship.

Thorpe decided to shuffle his lineup in the second half of the LRS game and tried new players in some positions.

They didn't fare as well as the original lineup, getting outscored 2-0 in the second half.

Thorpe said many of his players lack experience because some have never played competitive soccer before. Thorpe used his leadership abilities to lead at goalkeeper which helped solidify a defense led by sweeper T.J. Deppa, 509th Contracting Squadron.

"T.J. is the heart and soul of defense," Thorpe said. "He runs the show from the back."

Like many Whiteman intramural soccer teams, MedGp struggles with numbers. The team lacked four players in the first game, then lost four more for the game vs. AMXS. The 509th MedGp takes on the 509th Operations Support Squadron team at 6 p.m. Monday.

LRS falls short

Trailing the 509th MedGp 5-2 at half-time, the 509th LRS team bounced back in the second half on goals from Craig Lowery, 509th LRS, and Ryan Adeed. "Everyone played their heart out," said LRS coach Joe Amegatcher.

The MedGp peppered the LRS defense with numerous shots on goal. However without the efforts of LRS goalkeeper David Dunne, 509th LRS, the team may have gotten buried.

Dunne made several crucial saves, including his stop of MedGp's David Mendez in the first half from 15 yards out.

"We weren't the most skilled team out there, but we are playing as a team," said Amegatcher.

The next LRS contest is a rematch against MedGp at 5 p.m. April 21.
